LEARNING LADINO ONLINE DURING LOCKDOWN: CONSTRUCTING A SHORT LANGUAGE CLASS FOR POPULAR INTEREST

Bryan Kirschen, Asst. Prof of Spanish & Linguistics at Binghamton University in New York

Judeo-Spanish, often referred to as Ladino, is a variety of Spanish that continues to be spoken by a limited number of Sephardic Jews today. While classified as an endangered language, Judeo-Spanish is experiencing a resurgence of sorts, one that is particularly advanced by learners of the language. This talk highlights a recent online mini-series of workshops offered in Judeo-Spanish, which generated interest and participation from hundreds of students from around the globe. Additionally, this talk considers the role of the current pandemic and how a community of speakers and learners of a language might exist and be retained even during a time when state and national mandates require its citizens to remain at home.
